Structures for Framing Feedback as Learning Fuel

Data	Interpretation	Data with Interpretation
Everyone listened to directions.	That was a great lesson!	I thought it was great that everyone listened to directions.

1. Honestly Sandwich What is good about this lesson or what good intention can you detect?	"I see that you are keeping students' moods in mind when planning for the day before a vacation."
2. Specific What data are you using? What is your interpretation of that data?	"It looks like there is room for students to engage in reading/writing, but no structure for it during the movie."
3. Future Orientation Based on this feedback, what should come next?	"Before the next vacation, I wonder if you would try stopping the video once or twice for discussion and response so that fewer students sleep and more practice discussion/writing."
